

Ewha Womans University, South Korea

On July 16, 2009 Dr. Bae-Yong Lee, President of Ewha Womans University – the largest womans university in the world - visited North Carolina State University along with Dr. Hongmin Zi, Vice President for Global Affairs and Dr. Jean S. Kang, Associate Vice Provost for Global Affairs to meet with NC State University administrators and discuss opportunities to expand academic cooperation and exchange between NC State and Ewha. During the meeting with Dr. Warwick Arden, Interim Provost and Executive Vice Chancellor, Vice President Zi explained the Global Ewha 2010 Project that is designed to make Ewha Womans University one of the world's highest ranking universities by upgrading the level of its education, research and administrative infrastructure. The quality educational programs and innovative research at Ewha match NC State's strengths very well - particularly in engineering, education, design and the physical and natural sciences. The two institutions agreed to deepen academic ties and student exchange through an Agreement on Academic Exchange.
