Please note: All students should arrive on campus prior to the first day of classes each semester. OIS does not authorize students to return late. If there are extenuating circumstances which require you to return after the first day of classes but before Census date (=last day of registration), OIS recommends that you consult with your academic department and obtain approval for your late return. If you have to return to the U.S. after Census date, it is required to have approval from your academic department in writing with a copy sent to OIS. For additional information on late arrival, please refer to our website: <http://www.ncsu.edu/ois/current/latearrival.php>

If you are a student traveling during the regular academic semester, OIS recommends that you obtain a letter from your academic advisor approving your absence from the university during this time. Bring this letter with you when you travel.
